Before the pandemic we were thinking of sending somebody over to Japan and maybe teach a class, what happened with all that? We did have this collaboration with International College Japan. We did still teach classes for them, but we did not send any faculty over there. We have been teaching the classes live online for groups of students from that college in Japan. We have one going on now. We have been doing that as contract education. We have done it several times in sociology and a couple of others.
